RICHMOND AGAIN WINS FIRE LOSS CUP

PANTAGES ATTACK CASE MAY GO TO JURY TODAY

THEATERMAN PLAYED BY STATE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 24.—UP—With a plea that the jury believe the story of an "innocent girl" rather than the alibi of a great showman, the state supreme court today heard the case of the theaterman, Alexander Pantages, charged with attacking Eunice Pringle.

"This little 17 year old girl went away from her mother's home so hopefully that August morning," the prosecutor said. "She wanted a career and she went to see this great theatrical magnate. She was taken back to her mother, broken, bruised and stigmatized."

"That girl said he attacked her in that little den and then she finally faints. Only God and Alexander Pantages know all the things that occurred while she was unconscious. We must accept her story."

BANDIT TRIES TO ESCAPE GALLOWS

LAMAR, COLO., Oct. 24.—(UP)—Ralph Fleagle, white haired leader of the bandit band that robbed the First National Bank here of $20,000 a year and a half ago and killed four persons before the orgy was over, probably will know his fate Friday.

Witnesses today described the murderous raid on the bank in which President A. Newton Parrish and his son, J. F. Parrish, cashier, were shot.

Fleagle has been depending upon an agreement with the state that the death penalty would not be asked in return for his confession but the prosecution today told the jury that the punishment for the veteran bandit and confessed slayer is entirely in their hands.

Two of Fleagle's henchmen in the raid were convicted and sentenced to hang in the same courtroom last week.

NATION HIT IN RECORD CRASH ON STOCK MART

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(UP)—With a crash that unnerved the entire nation and caused worried banking conferences in Wall street, the stock market today broke out of bounds and dropped to ruinous depths before America's billions in wealth thrown into the gap, could stay the reaction.

All records went by the board. Sales totaled 12,894,850 shares, compared with 8,246,740 shares traded on March 26, the previous record.

Sale in the first half hour reached the staggering total of 1,676,300 shares as blocks of 5,000 to 20,000 shares came out. This was at the rate of 16,735,000 for a full session.

CITY GIVEN TROPHY FOR 2ND TIME

Richmond gained new laurels for fire prevention work yesterday when it was again awarded the Louis B. Mayer International cup at the Birmingham, Ala., meeting of the International Association of Fire Chiefs.

The cup, which denotes the greatest advancement made by any city in the world in reducing fire hazards has been awarded to this city for the second consecutive time. The same cup, as well as the Thomas Ince cup, Pacific coast trophy, was won by this city last year. The Mayer cup which must be won three times to remain the property of the city is awarded to the city with more than 10,000 population but under 100,000 in reducing fire loss and improving fire prevention work.

Chief W. P. Cooper's untiring efforts since coming to Richmond in July, 1924, have brought about conditions until this city has won world wide recognition as a community that is constantly on guard against the fire demon.

The Mayer cup is awarded on points decided on the following achievements:

- Reduction in fire losses.
- Reduction in number of alarms.
- Reduction in false alarms.
- Fire hazard inspection work.
- Instruction on fire prevention in schools.
- Publicity on fire prevention.
- Cooperation of public officials.
- Public meetings held.
- Legislation enacted.
- Cooperation of auxiliary departments.
- Casualties.

Far Ahead

Last year Richmond was far ahead of any city in winning the international trophy. The winner of the trophy for the cities of over 100,000 was some 11 points behind Richmond's record score.

Chief Cooper was elated last night when informed by the RECORD HERALD that his department had again been awarded the coveted trophy. He stated that although the fire loss in 1928 was slightly

52 LOST AS FERRY SINKS

RACINE, WIS., Oct. 24.—UP—The giant car ferry Milwaukee foundered in the storm-whipped waters of Lake Michigan, some time during the past three days, carrying to their deaths Capt. Robert McFarland and his crew of 51 men it was established definitely tonight.

The worst storm in 20 years, which suddenly turned the lake into a sea of fire, was the cause of the disaster.

Nothing was heard of the vessel with 27 loaded freight cars in her hold until today when bills of lading were found bobbing about the lake.

Bodies Found

Then tonight fate of the 25-year old ferry was sealed completely when the steamer Stead Chemist found bodies in the storm tossed water near Waukegan.

Around two of them were life belts marked "S. S. Milwaukee."

Coast guard officers said that the Milwaukee probably turned turtle when her load of freight cars, clumped to four tracks, became unbalanced and careened to one side.

Exactly when the Stead Chemist's radio cracked out her fearful message concerning the bodies with the plainly marked lifebelts, would old time lake sailors admit.

S. O. GROUPS MAY MERGE

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—Utilization of many of the 33 companies of the so-called Standard Oil group, which prior to a dissolution in 1911 made up the old Standard Oil company, is predicted in an analysis of Standard Oil company of New Jersey.

Disintegration of the old Standard Oil company contemplated by the Supreme Court decision is only "recently becoming an established fact and is resulting entirely from economic forces much more potent than the 'community of interest' which has held the 33 companies in close harmony for many years," it was said.

The last two years has shown that to succeed, an oil company must be completely integrated. Consequently the time has arrived when refining and marketing companies must have assured crude supplies, and the companies which have heretofore been classed as producers must only add refining and marketing to their operating activities, the report said.

The expansion program of Standard of New Jersey will not be completed until the company invades the markets of the Pacific coast. That could be accomplished and huge supplies and reserves of crude oil obtained at the same time the merger with the Standard Oil of California could be arranged.

IN HER TWO HANDS MY PLEASURE LIES

In her two hands my pleasure lies
And with her heart mine beats in tune,
To her great love, as sea to moon,
The tides of all my being rise.

Her arms surround my heart and will,
Soft patting they that hold me dumb,
And with their charms my pleasures come
Like homing birds across the hill.

And oh, her eyes at evening hold
Within them quiet homes of prayer,
And with the memories gathered there
My rosary of dreams is told.

What Women Want in Public Life

ALL the ways in which the career and the point of view of Alfred E. Smith may stand as an inspiration to younger men and women, none is more valuable than his attitude toward women in politics and government. Many New York women long ago discovered the mingled simplicity and candor and honest good sense of the former Governor's dealings with their sex. But what his customary directness and force he has explained in that finest of the autumn autobiographies, "My Life."

Now what he thinks of women in public life and how he himself gave them opportunity to serve the community.

"All during my public life I recognized the value of the services of women," he writes. "When I was Sheriff and before women were entitled to vote, I appointed a woman as my secretary, and when I was elected President of the Board of Aldermen I appointed her to the same position. 'While I was Governor I appointed women where, in my opinion, they were as well, if not, as in some cases, better qualified than men. I appointed a woman to membership in the State Civil Service Commission and afterward elevated her to the Chairmanship. I appointed a woman to the Industrial Commission and another to the State Hospital Commission.'

Alfred E. Perkins, that most useful citizen of this city whom Gov. Smith placed on the Industrial Commission, tells a delightful story. He named her as his representative for settling the strike of the Rome Brass and Copper Company. "The heads of the business were shocked to find that I had selected a woman to negotiate a treaty of peace between the workers and their employers," he narrates. "They seemed to imply by their attitude the belief that such undertakings were reserved to the province of a woman. Afterward the attorney told me frankly that they wondered what was the matter with me that I would make such a suggestion; but after Frances Perkins had visited the city of Rome and called the warring sections into conference, one of the leading officials of the Rome Brass and Copper Company said to the attorney: 'Do us a favor and ask the Governor where he found that woman.'

"Where I to be asked," continues Mr. Smith, "whether or not, in my opinion, equal suffrage for men and women was a step forward or a step backward, I would feel compelled to say that I believe it to have been a step forward. Women are just as much interested in the government of the country and the State as men are, and are just as intelligent. I uniformly favored all measures that gave women an equal voice in party affairs with that of men."

"Nevertheless, I do not believe that the principle of equality is carried out by doubling the party representation simply to permit women to participate in party affairs. I believe that wherever the contestants for a party position are a man and a woman and the woman happens to be better qualified she should be elected."

Justice and opportunity—these are what intelligent women want to receive from men in public life. These are what they did receive from Alfred E. Smith. His attitude was so refreshingly different from that of the professionally brilliant, indolent-blessed politician, who is perfectly willing to let women vote for him or pour at political pink tea, but who never dreams of giving to women an important post either in the party organization or in public service.

Of course qualified women should

Cleaning Pewter

PEWTER articles are in great favor in modern homes and the beauty of these may be marred by improper care. Pewter is a soft metal and should never be cleaned with harsh powders.

Fine rottenstone mixed with sufficient raw linseed oil to make a paste is an excellent cleansing agent for general use. When a more thorough scouring is necessary use only a fine friction powder such as whiting and apply it with the finest grade of steel wool.

After scouring pewter it should be washed in hot soap suds and polished with a soft clean cloth.

A DISH A DAY

A simple cake split and put together with a luscious cream filling and the top dusted with powdered sugar is a favorite American dessert.

The name, however, differs with the locality, although the cake is usually a sponge type. Sometimes the sweet is called Washington Pie and sometimes Boston Cream Pie.

Since the pleasure of the dessert depends upon the lightness of the cake and the flavor of the cream, a good recipe for both is essential. As a rule the cream can be improved upon. A tart orange filling between the layers makes this:

BOSTON CREAM PIE
One-fourth cup butter
Three-fourths cup sugar
Two eggs
One cup milk
Two cups flour

NANCY DORRIS

Three teaspoons baking powder
Oven temperature: moderate or 375 degrees F.
Baking time: thirty-five minutes.

Cream the butter in the mixing bowl when it is soft and the sugar granules. Break in the eggs and beat the mixture until it is light and fluffy. Just a half minute or so. Sift the flour, baking powder and salt together. Add the milk to the butter-sugar-eggs and then fold in the flour-baking powder-salt.

Pour the cake batter into the well-greased cake pan. The oven should be moderate to the hand, or register 375 degrees F., when the cake goes in. Let the cake bake thirty-five minutes. When the cake shrinks from the sides of the pan, or springs back at a light touch of the finger, it is baked.

The cake is done! Turn it upon the rack to cool.
To-morrow the recipe for the filling and the directions for putting the pie together will be given.

A Cold Water Diet for Skins

ON A LITTLE journey, not so long ago, we saw a skin that was perfect. It was dazzlingly pink and white, seemingly poreless, and as firm and smooth as alabaster. Nor is that all. It was the waxen dewy finish of a white rose.

The skin of a child? No, of a woman of twenty-seven and a woman so poor that she couldn't afford so much as a small pot of face cream. That skin was to us as puzzling as it was pleasing.

What was her secret? Had she been a girl of eighteen we should have said, youth, health and face good luck. Had she not been so poor we would have concluded, regularly, intelligent beauty treatments. Finally we got her to tell us all about herself.

"I never use warm water on my face. I never use soap. I cannot afford cream or lotion. Not even the cheap kind. We are glad for her skin she couldn't afford the 'cheap kind'—tremendously glad. So would you have been had you seen that skin."

Now we do not mean this is an anti-soap propaganda. There are some faces—only ones, for example, living in going cities—that would be impossible without soap or some washing preparation. For almost any other type of skin, and for oily skins living away from cities, the Beauty Shop recommends peroxide, a substance from warm water and soap.

You see, cold water possesses astringent qualities. It tightens the pores. It also considerably softens the tissues, which latter makes the cold-water treatment excellent for dry skin. It also strengthens and brightens the eye.

Attempt dry cleansings of the face with paper towels and you are an accident waiting to happen. The skin is so tender that the patient used to hot water and soap scouring may feel cold. Occasionally, too, it might be well to give the face a thorough cleansing with cream.

This need not be a "forever after" treatment, unless, of course, you want it to be.

As we have said here several times before, we believe that variety is the spice of life as well as of life. Most skins tend to grow tired and dull under the same regimen week after week and month after month. Why not try the cold-water stunt for a fortnight, at any rate?

New Slip-Ons Have Waistlines

NEW autumn sweaters prove the truth of the epigram that nothing is permanent but change, especially in fashions. So many, many were the slip-ons of knit fabric, a simple line affair worn with a collar, a leather belt placed low at the hips, that the appearance of tuck-in type last spring was in the nature of an innovation.

The cycle in sweaters now has swung around to include the latest turn of the waistline and is in actuality a slip-on in which the top half used for wristbands also is employed to achieve a wide shirred-in waistline.

This style is a definite change to the type of the sweater while the lower edge forms a flared skirt over the hips.

Other autumn trends instead of being knitted, are cut from knit weave and fitted so they resemble blouses of fine yarn. Many of these adapted from Parisian originals are very tucked in beneath the belt. As to place them in a class by themselves, collars and cuffs of each piece as pique or linen add a casual touch.

For fully fifteen years the term waist has been in disuse, blouse having been considered a word of great elegance in describing this sort of garment. But with changing fashions, the nomenclature may bring about the return to sartorial parlance of no less a word than shirtwaist.

Household Discoveries

One woman who always pressed up the cover of her cook book when she had it on the table for reference decided to try it with a pretty old cloth, and now it always looks attractive because it needs only to be wiped with a damp cloth.

A woman who does all her own housework was annoyed by her rough hands while sewing on a delicate fabric, so she washed them in warm water to which she added some common starch, and she was astonished at the soft, velvety feeling. She says it also whitens the skin.

Good to Know

White fabrics will not turn yellow when stored for a time if pieces of white wax are freely sprinkled between them.

Inquiry Into "Social Lobby" and Its Influence on Legislation Overshadows Interest in Investigation of Tariff Lobbyists at Washington

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Investigation of tariff lobbyists is no new thing in Washington, so that there is far greater interest in the prospect of an inquiry into the "social lobby" by the special Senate committee headed by Senator Caraway of Arkansas.

There is opportunity here for plenty of excitement.

The extent to which social activities are engaged to promote legislative projects always has been somewhat vague. A Senate committee would encounter many difficulties in getting the real story.

Several women maintain political salons, especially at Sunday night suppers, but there has been a suggestion of only one being the representative of a corporation. She is supposed to be a confidential informer for a New York banking house of international prominence.

It is not doubted that some of these women exert an important influence on legislation but more on the impression of their own personal or political interest, than on paid lobbying in the accepted sense. For example, no person in Washington was more active or influential in the fight against the League of Nations than was Mrs. Alice Roosevelt. Longworth and she left nothing undone to keep Republican senators in line against acceptance of the Wilson covenant.

It is undoubtedly true that the old racket of making friends for legislation or stocking the cards against it through extensive entertainments continues, and that numerous parties are given in expensive hotel suites for that purpose. It is no less true that Senators and Representatives attend these parties, knowing well the activities and the desires of their hosts. In most instances they have known the men for years and regard them as friends.

More information frequently is obtained on one side or another of a controversy than through hearings by Congressional committees.

There seems to be widespread agreement that acquaintances of the sort are far more productive of results than the operations of these organized lobbies which are listed as legislative counsel to attend hearings, make speeches, file bills and then button-hole Congressmen or peer them in their offices.

The lady who gave the whoopee parties in the big hotel suites do not sit in outer offices of Senators confining their heels. They merely phone and ask the members to drop by for a cocktail or dinner.

In most instances the most effective work of the sort is done by the heads of industries who come here only during the pendency of legislation in which they are interested. At other times they maintain their own agents here to keep an eye on legislation, or else they contribute to the upkeep of year-round headquarters here.

Some one has suggested, facetiously, it is presumed, that the Caraway Committee to do its job thoroughly ought to call every Senator and ask him to submit his engagement book of last winter, to describe the places he visited, whether drinks were served and what was the nature of any conversations bearing on pending legislation.

In no other way, according to this wagging theory, may the whole truth be known about the "social lobby." And, maybe, that would start something under the big white dome. Senators would be running around in circles more than they were when they thought William B. Shearer might tell all he knew about the history of the fifteen cruiser bill and the merchant marine act.

Attack on Christianity

The greatest scientific attack on the Founder of Christianity that was ever undertaken has been launched by Prof. Sangle-Binet, famous authority on neurology and brain diseases at the University of Paris. Four ponderous tomes, full of mystifying technical jargon, published a year ago, are now condensed by the Professor into one volume for popular consumption, under the title of "La Folie de Jesus," which may be translated "The Insanity of Jesus."

The professor sets out to prove that every act and every word of Christ was the result of a sick brain. His sayings are shown to have been incoherent and rambling. From his earliest youth to his death, Christ's every act is analyzed, in the manner of modern psychiatrists. The impression of the book is terrible. Some of the statements and deductions of Prof. Binet are unanswerable. In fact, the whole book is unanswerable. Religion is too much a matter of acceptance and faith to be able to reply blow for blow to the conclusions of a man of science. All argument stops when the Christian says: "I believe."

The book will probably not cause one man or woman to change his or her attitude toward Christ. Only those who are constantly driven hither and yon by doubts will turn to this volume. On the whole, Prof. Binet has only added another item to the confusion and debate that rages uninterruptedly around the person of Jesus since the early ages of our common era. The remarkable fact that the professor feels the Gospels to be authentic accounts, is a curiosity. The logical critics have sometimes doubted this. The ruthless agnostic that is the great Paris savant is diametrically opposed to them. And this for the single reason that it serves his purpose. The book is selling out rapidly in France.

And will probably never be translated into English. Such books fall too easily under the ban of censors and watch societies, although there can be no doubt that it is a serious scientific study.

Rewarding the Taxpayer
Year in and year out Americans pay their taxes and receive no special reward for promptness. It has never occurred to the authorities that something might be done to make the unpopular business slightly less onerous. An Englishman living in a small Japanese city has discovered that the officials there make a game of it in charmingly characteristic manner. He suggests their method to tax collectors everywhere. His first knowledge of it came to him in a letter "In recognition of the regular payment of your taxes you are to be commended publicly and given a prize by the city authorities and are requested to come to the place where prizes will be given in the city office between 9 and 3 o'clock. Please bring your seal and this note with you." Flattered at being publicly praised, puzzled by the request for his seal, the Englishman hastened to the City Hall. There were no people present and no bands playing, but a couple of minor officials were at their desks, eating rice. One of them presided

SOMETIMES imagine that I am being tried for my life, with those nearest and dearest to me acting as judge, jury and all.

I really do not know what would become of the older folks were it not for the youngsters coming on. They are up on manners and they are deeply into the ways of the world, let us be patient and remember that if children did not know more than their parents the world would not progress.

Anyway, father really ought to put his coat on for dinner, don't you think? And mother really ought to have her hair done once in a while—don't YOU think?

A Silk Stocking Hint

SILK stockings will last longer if selected and treated with care. When you buy them, make sure the weave is close and firm and that the stockings are sufficiently long so the tops can be doubled when the garters are adjusted. This will lessen the strain on the stockings.

It is possible to minimize the danger of runs if you are careful about rubbing your stockings against the seats on chairs and never sit with the legs crossed nor pull up the stockings from the back seams.

RICHMOND AS AN AIRPORT!

Convenient Location On All Main Arteries of Traffic Makes City Ideal for Air Travel-Much Must Be Done to Make It Permanent

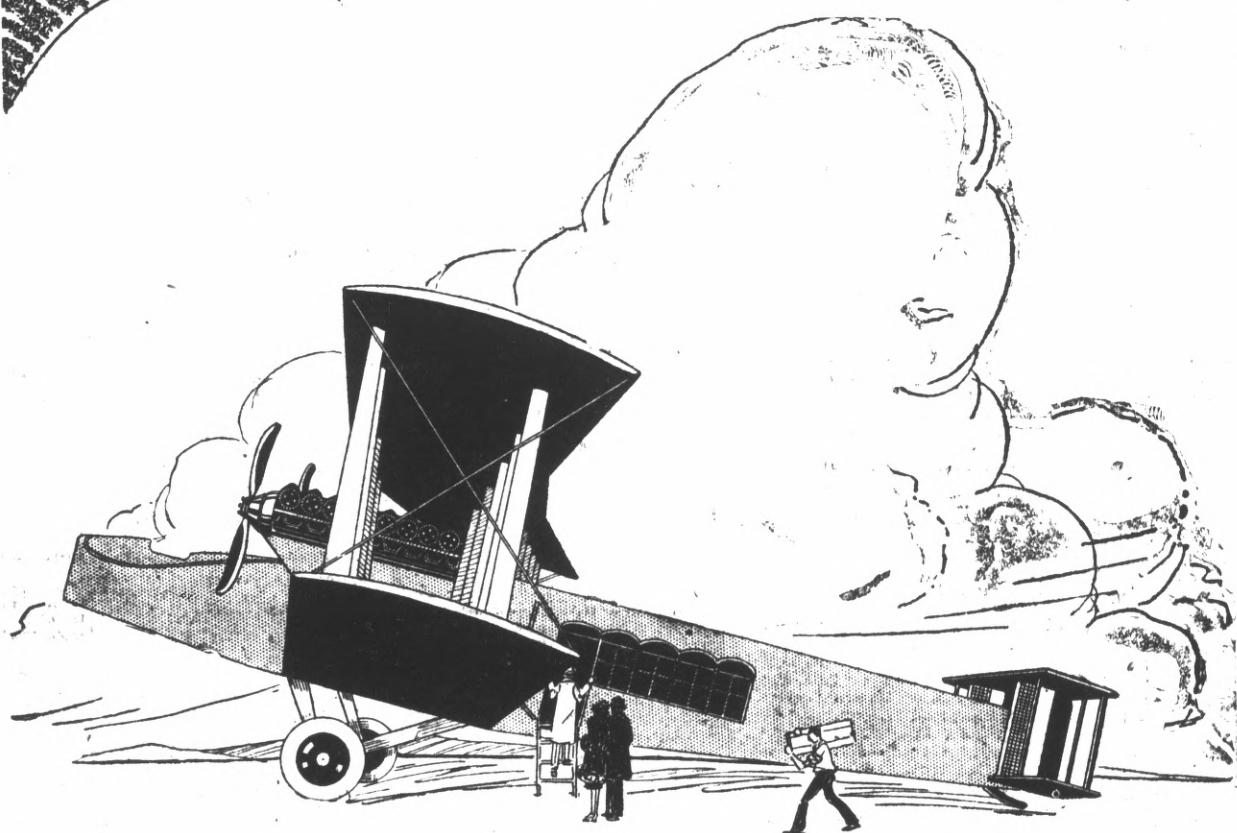

LINDBERGH...

Lindbergh flew to Paris about two years ago and thrilled the world. In almost as short a time as it takes to tell the story, this youth became a man and a leader of men.

Ministers doffed their hats to him and kings stretched up their heads to do him glory. The great were content to sit in the shadow of his presence and millions thrilled to his accomplishment.

The air as a safe medium of distribution and communication—the air as a means of travel—that's what Lindbergh's accomplishment and the successes of the pioneers of the air mean to us.

Air Mail—Air Transportation—Air Passenger Travel—Air Express—all these are not things of tomorrow. They are today operating in other cities.

RICHMOND is fair-minded and "air-minded" and we are going to do our part in developing the new mode of transportation just as we have done in the past in other ways.

This new phase of transportation is developing by leaps and bounds, and no city can be backward in recognizing it. Already a big business has developed in the transportation of mails. Passenger traffic is on the increase. Express is carried in this manner for quick service and even freight is carried in giant planes. If a city is to benefit to the greatest extent from this mode of travel it must make it inviting for those interested to use their facilities.

RICHMOND HAS SEVEN GOOD LOCATIONS FOR AN AIRPORT.

Richmond is located in a part of the state where flying conditions are better than at most points.

An example of what an airport, as well as schools, churches, parks, libraries, golf clubs, business houses, etc., mean to a city was impressed upon us sometime ago while visiting another city. A large manufacturing plant was consulted as to the possibility of that firm with their expansion program coming to RICHMOND.

"BUT YOU HAVE NO AIRPORT" was the answer received. We had never thought of airplanes in connection with factories. But that's how it works out—a live city must keep up in every respect if it continues to grow, and RICHMOND IS ALIVE AND GROWING.

Forget any notions you may have had that this or that can't be done—it can be done and we believe that the citizens of Richmond will never rest until we have a good substantial airport.

A glance at the map will show Richmond on a direct route to all principal eastern points. There is always a basis for business to come here from those points.

Richmond must realize its opportunity in that direction, otherwise we must stand by for many years in a second or third rate position in the air lanes.

ELKS, SHRINERS CARDS READY NINES READY FOR TILT

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—Enthusiasm among all Elks and Shriners in northern California has reached a high pitch today relative to the annual charity baseball combats between the Elks Temple Shriners and San Francisco Lodge No. 3 of Elks at Recreation Park on Sunday afternoon.

The affair, of which the proceeds are turned over to the charity boxes of both organizations, promises to eclipse all previous diamond titles between the two big fraternal clubs, according to officials of both groups. The ticket sale has been exceedingly heavy. On four previous occasions the Elks and Shriners of this city have met on the baseball field. Each team has a victory to its credit and the other two games were tied.

Sunday's tilt will be preceded by a spectacular and colorful torch parade by the uniformed bodies of both organizations and a band concert. The game starts at 2 o'clock.

Mayor James Rolph will officially open the contest when he twirls the first ball across the home plate to Chief of Police William Quinn, the catcher, Albert S. Reedy, exalted ruler of the Elks and Dr. William P. Road, potentate of the Shrine, will officiate at the opening of the game. Henry Workheim is chairman of the Elks team and Joseph Harowitz chairman of the Shrine nine.

Among the players are a number of former major league ball tossers and Pacific coast league boys.

—RAGS WANTED—

El Cerrito Sports Club Plans Show

The El Cerrito Fish and Game Protective association will be host to the district council of the California Sportsmen's association on Nov. 29 at the El Cerrito Athletic club, according to plans discussed at a recent meeting.

Judge A. H. MacKinnon, Ed Wurizer and M. P. Kelly will be in charge of the entertainment.

The annual banquet of the El Cerrito association will be held in December. Judge MacKinnon, Charles Zimmerman, Ed Wurizer, and Angelo Bartoli will be in charge.

On Nov. 13 the club will hold a motion picture show at the club rooms. The movies will be provided by the division of fish and game, and will show wild life.

Boy Scouts, P. T. A. members, and school children, as well as members of sportsmen's clubs from all over the bay region will be invited to attend the meeting.

Kelly presided over the business meeting.

Soccer Club, Scandies Will Tangle Nov. 3

The Richmond Soccer club will meet the Scandia club of Oakland Nov. 3 at the Oakland Frothing park. Sixty-sixth and East Fourteenth streets.

A championship cup for the juniors in the Eastbay Soccer league has been donated by the league members. It was announced at a meeting held in Oakland recently. The championship contest will be played between the Hakoh squad and the Berleins Sunday at one o'clock at the Oakland Frothing park.

The Richmond club was represented at the league meeting by George McDord, William Fawcett, and Ted Thompson.

DeMolay Boys Plan Dance

Plans for events to be held in the near future were discussed last night by the Richmond chapter of DeMolay, meeting in the Point Masonic hall.

Tomorrow night the group will join with the Richmond Bethel of Jobs Daughters at an invitational dance at the Richmond clubhouse. Immediately after the dance the chapter will go to the Grank Lake theater in Oakland where a midnight frolic is to be held by the Eastbay DeMolay boys.

On Nov. 26 the chapter will confer the DeMolay degree before the members of the Masonic lodges.

A Weston Judkins presided last night.

Rioting Convicts Refused Clemency

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 24.—UP—Executive clemency was refused five Folsom convicts, leaders of the Folsom Thanksgiving Day riot, by Gov. C. C. Young here today.

Anthony Brown and Roy E. Stokes, are to hang on Jan. 3; Walter E. Burke and James H. Gregg, Jan. 10; and James Gleason, alias Crosby, Jan. 17.

14 TEAMS IN CITY CAGE LEAGUE

Schedules for the 1929-30 basketball season will be drawn up for the Richmond city basketball league at a special meeting Monday night of league officials, according to W. L. Sawright, city recreation director.

At a session last night, Ernest Barber, D. Cook, Oliver Muth and George Tandy were appointed to meet with Sawright and draw up the schedule.

Games will start in November and will end about February. The contest will be played at the Roosevelt Junior high school gymnasium on Monday and Thursday nights, with the B games to be held prior to the A league games.

Six teams have been entered in the A league, and eight in the B league, with the prospect of the Native Sons and the Standard Oil teams entering the B league.

The following teams are entered in the A league: Santa Fe's, Furriers, Garfinkle's, Studebaker, Olem and Matiks.

The Santa Fe's No. 2, Civic Center Tire Co., Redmen, Mammy's Place, Santa Fe Indians and the Master Craft Roofers have entered in the B league.

At the end of the season, the winner of each league will play for the championship.

MT. DIABLO 11, R. U. H. S. TO MEET TODAY

Dust will fly tonight on the Richmond Union high school football stadium when the Richmond Union high school gridders meet the Mt. Diablo high school aggregation of Concord in what may be Richmond High's last home game.

Many of the members of the Richmond reserve squad are expected to see action in tonight's contest, for the first string will probably be reserved for the game to be played at the home field, Nov. 2 at Lodi.

Though starting the season in an inconspicuous manner, the local gridders have gradually improved until they are now dangerous opponents. Tonight's game will probably be one of the last contests to be played at the home field, and the local team will therefore make a strenuous attempt to make it a successful one.

The starting lineup for the Richmond Union high school team will probably include: Degun, Drexel, Carston, Dunleavy, Jackson, Jewell, Ball, guards; Hall or McLean, center; Lane or Miller, quarterback; Accamazzo, fullback, and Masek, Scarella, halfbacks.

Is Your Home Thief Proof?

Today, Anthony Brown and Roy E. Stokes, are to hang on Jan. 3; Walter E. Burke and James H. Gregg, Jan. 10; and James Gleason, alias Crosby, Jan. 17.

ENTIRE NATION IN CRASH OF MARKET

ers were under terrific pressure in a few minutes. Tickers got behind and pieces were dropped so fast that stop-loss orders were caught in profusion.

Traders passed the word back from the floor. Brokerage wires carried out the information all over the country. Small traders who had been hanging on were unable to do so any longer. They unloaded their holdings without thought of what they would bring.

By noon the decline had gathered such momentum that heads of large financial institutions gathered at hastily called meetings.

Exactly what transpired in those meetings will never be known. Across from the stock exchange in the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co., where many a conference of world-wide importance has been held, several of America's leading bankers gathered to discuss today's crisis, for such it was.

Today's market has never been equaled. Col. Leonard Ayres, economist of Cleveland, said that the country but America could withstand such a shock. Whether it did withstand the shock remains to be seen.

The bankers in Morgan's office included Charles E. Mitchell, the chairman of the National City Bank, largest bank in the world; Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the Chase National Bank; William C. Potter, president of the Guaranty Trust company and Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co.

"Little Distress"

At the close of the conference Lamont called newspapermen and nonchalantly as he said: "There has been a little distress selling on the stock exchange this morning and we have held a meeting of financial institutions to discuss the situation."

As he spoke the din of the stock exchange floor could be heard across the street. Tickers had lost $5,000,000,000 from yesterday's last levels.

Reporters hurried out and their papers quickly published the result of the conference that was divulged. In a minute after the newspaper statement, Dow Jones' tickers had carried the news to the floor; brokers wired it all over the world. The pat of Lamont's statement that turned the market was:

No Difficulty Seen

"We have found that there are no houses in difficulty and reports as to the maintenance of margin are very satisfactory. We consider the situation on the stock exchange this morning a technical one rather than fundamental and that it will result in a betterment."

At about the same time that Lamont's statement was issued, bankers began to support the leaders. Their buying brought U. S. Steel from 194 to above 207, and other pivotal shares rebounded 10 to 20 or 30 points from their lows.

The effect was electrical and the whole market steadied. Consistent buying by the biggest financial interests was barely able, however, to absorb the huge amount of offerings.

Richmond Sued For $20,000

MARTINEZ, Oct. 24.—Suits for $20,000 damages have been filed by Anita C. Arnold, against the city of Richmond, for a fractured leg and other injuries she alleges she suffered when she tripped over a pile of dirt on a sidewalk on Fourth street, on Nov. 21, 1928.

E. A. Hoffman, city engineer, is also made a defendant in the suit, which charges negligence on the part of the city and Hoffman. The plaintiff is represented by Wilbur S. Pierce.

Polies Popular With Soldiers

WASHINGTON—Pet polies are becoming so popular with visitors to the Panama Canal Zone that Army Quartermaster Corps is considering providing parrot quarters between the Zone and the United States. Regulations forbid pets aboard transports but the Quartermaster General's office, the War Department reports, is being deluged with requests for special permission to bring pet parrots home aboard ship.

Monument For Pioneers Asked

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 21.—UP—A monument dedicated to California pioneers may be erected on Telegraph Hill at the former sight of a semaphore that in early days signalled the approach of vessels through the Golden Gate, according to announcement of the Native Sons' committee.

$50,000 Picture Bought For $7.50

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—UP—What was thought to have been merely a poor painting of a raja bought by Clark Johnson, San Francisco, for $7.50, today was learned to be an original work of El Greco, valued at $50,000.

End Of Raid

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—UP—Apparently deadlocked, the jury which is considering the fate of Albert Fall, former secretary of the interior, charged with bribery, was jockeyed up for the night at 11 p. m. after having been out 11 1/2 hours.

The jury took the case at 11:30 a. m. and since that hour has remained locked in the jury dormitory room in the district of Columbia courthouse. Meals were sent in.

Disparaging of a verdict tonight, Justice Hitz, ordered court adjourned until 10 a. m. Friday.

Fall and Doherty were at their respective hotels, Mrs. Fall, her daughter, Mrs. Chase, several other relatives and a few attorneys were among the few who kept vigil at the courthouse.

There were less than a hundred persons there, more than half of them court attaches, news papermen and photographers.

Justice Hitz, in addition to warning against sympathy aroused either by the lawyers or by the jurors themselves, suggested to them they could couple a verdict of guilty with a recommendation for mercy if they desired. Such a recommendation would not be binding but it would constitute a part of the record of the case he said.

CHECK TIRES

WILLIAM CALHOUN, dry administrator for New Jersey, shows stronghold of rum ring that was recently raided. Arsenal seized in rum castle at Highlands, N. J., is at his feet. Even banks assisted the $2,000,000 rum ring in its vast bootlegging operations, it has been revealed.

At the close of the conference Lamont called newspapermen and nonchalantly as he said: "There has been a little distress selling on the stock exchange this morning and we have held a meeting of financial institutions to discuss the situation."

As he spoke the din of the stock exchange floor could be heard across the street. Tickers had lost $5,000,000,000 from yesterday's last levels.

Reporters hurried out and their papers quickly published the result of the conference that was divulged. In a minute after the newspaper statement, Dow Jones' tickers had carried the news to the floor; brokers wired it all over the world. The pat of Lamont's statement that turned the market was:

Held In Probe Of River Death

A self-bus being driven by D. R. Simon, 222 South Fourth street and a car driven by Stephen Smith, 744 Alameda street, Berkeley, collided at Thirty-fourth street and Cutting boulevard yesterday, according to police report.

The side of the bus was scraped by the right fender of Smith's machine. Damage was slight.

Court Confirms Briegleb Fine

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—UP—The State Supreme court today upheld the decision of the Los Angeles court in declaring that Rev. Gustav A. Briegleb, Los Angeles pastor, must pay a $25 fine for contempt. The preacher was cited for remarks made concerning the trial of Mrs. Alexander Panagiotis.

Hollywood Stage Swept By Flames

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 24.—UP—Two fires fanned by a high wind swept Cahuenga pass today, destroyed the stage of the open air Pantages theater and for a time threatened the stage of the famous Hollywood bowl.

IONE ORD of New Orleans is being held by police in an investigation into the mysterious death of Jack Kraft who was murdered and thrown off a river steamer into the Mississippi river, according to police.

The cup which has been in possession of the local department for the last year was recently sent to the Birmingham convention by Chief Cooper. The trophy was presented to the city last year at an impressive banquet meeting held in the Hotel Carquinez. A similar function will probably be held when the cup is presented here this year.

The Thomas Ince cup presented to the city last year was for the lowest fire loss and most extensive fire prevention work on the Pacific coast. This cup is the permanent property of the Richmond Fire department, Mexico, Hawaiian Islands, Alaska, British Columbia, and all states west of the Rocky Mountains competed.

Chief Cooper announced last night that the department would continue an aggressive campaign for the remainder of this year to bring the Mayer cup to Richmond for the third consecutive year.

How to heat
your home automatically

—with less investment

Have you pleasant memories about the heating of your home last winter?

You can have care-free automatic gas-fired heating equipment that keeps the air healthfully fresh. The cost is less than any other automatic system. Yet it lasts as long and requires practically no servicing. It works like any good system, except that it burns gas fuel which requires no storage space. This is a cleaner fuel that is more responsive to quick automatic control. It is odorless because the firebox is properly vented. You touch an electrical control—healthful, circulating warmth starts flowing into your home.

There are many types of good gas-fired heating equipment. How can you know which to choose?

The experience of P. G. and E. engineers and their knowledge of all types of gas-fired heating systems qualifies them to judge which is the most adaptable for each home. They will help you select a good system. And we are interested in having you use a perfectly working system, for that means a satisfied P. G. and E. customer.

So let our engineers give you complete details about the economy of gas fuel for care-free heating. Telephone or call at our office. You'll have at your command, without cost or obligation, the advice of a man who knows gas-fired heating equipment.

SYNOPSIS

Joe Yand, a young man, is a victim of the "Love" epidemic and ends up, accidentally, with Katherine Miller, his employer's daughter, and then son, Little Pal.
Joe forces his wife to seek a divorce by accusing her of intimacy with Dr. Merrill for whom she is a nurse. Upon his release Joe goes to see his boy in school. When he sees the child follows him to a play. Katherine is noticed as Little Pal's disappearance. When Joe takes him to Dr. Merrill's office, believing Joe has kidnapped him, wants to call the police. But Katherine has returned.

CHAPTER XVII—Continued

"It's probably some pressure on a nerve," he explained. "There doesn't seem to be anything the matter with the boy's spine. There are no breaks or dislocations. The doctor might have caused the loss of speech, and again it may be this same pressure which affects his locomotion that causes the loss of speech."

Joe nodded dumbly. "What—what can you do about that?" he questioned.

"I want to make certain first that I'm right," the doctor answered travely. "We'll put him under the fluoroscope. He hesitated a moment. Then: "Will you bring him into the X-ray room?" he notified for Joe to follow.

The song plunger carefully picked up the child and followed the doctor. They entered a wide, white-washed room where strange shaped machines and electrical appliances were ranged about the walls.

Dr. Merrill prepared the table beside which were numerous switches and small boxes.

"Now, put him down here," he told Joe.

The song plunger placed the child on the table and watched while the doctor stripped the boy. Never once did the child stir. Those practiced fingers were gentle and easy. The doctor adjusted a box like arrangement over his eyes and touched the switches. A light flared.

In the waiting room Katherine sighed unhappily. Miss Locke was giving up hope of the buzzer sounding. She released her grip on the telephone and sat down again, arranging the file cards on her desk.

"Tess, don't you think I could intercept for just a minute?"
Katherine asked again. She felt that she couldn't stand another moment of waiting. She must know whether Robert had found out anything.

"Well, I don't think you'd better," Miss Locke shook her head.
"The doctor seemed pretty upset."

Katherine nodded. "I'll just leave a message. Listen, Tess, tell Dr.
Merrill that I'll be waiting at the hospital for him at ten o'clock.
It's important. You won't forget."

"I'll tell him," Miss Locke agreed.
"All right. Good bye." Katherine got up and disappeared through the outer door.

Other patients were beginning to arrive. The nine o'clock appointment was waiting. It was nine-thirty and the nine-thirty patient was waiting. And still Miss Locke received no

52 LOST WHEN LAKE FERRY SINKS

at last McKay had been defeated by his life long adversary, tempestuous Lake Michigan.

For three days, gales which at times reached a velocity of 53 miles an hour, swept over the lake, sent steamer after steamer onto rocks and disabled many others.

Wary coast guardsmen sighted the wreckage of the foundered ferry, 10 miles east of Wind Point.

A few hours later the Steel Chemist, wallowing along in the heavy seas, picked up the two bodies and headed with them to Chicago.

Four other lake steamers were smashed on the sand bars and reefs by the crashing waves.

Other Crew Rescued

The Maple Court, with a crew of 23, piled up on rocks near Cockburn Island in Lake Huron.

All members of the crew were rescued by coast guardsmen early today after a precarious battle with the lashing surf. It was feared the vessel would be pounded to bits.

Thirty-two men were aboard the steamer William B. Pilkey, wedged on a reef near DeTour, Mich. High seas made rescue impossible, but coast guardsmen said they expected to be able to take off the crew before morning unless the Pilkey, a 432 foot ore boat, is demolished in the meantime.

Only a pile of scrap iron remained today on a sand bar to mark the remains of the freighter N. J. Nesson near Leamington, Ont. Thirteen persons, including a woman, were taken from the boat before she was ground to pieces last night.

On Sand Bar

A few miles away was the steel sand boat, C. W. Caldwell, with 18 aboard. She was lodged on a sand bar, but was expected to ride out the storm safely.

A score more steamers limped into various ports hours overdue today with reports of harrowing experiences of the past 48 hours on the inland seas.

The great gray waves which have kept the lakes in a constant state of furious turmoil for 72 hours began to grow smaller to night and unless another storm comes up probably will subside completely by Friday.

Protect Your Furniture

A $1.25 to Bid Your Home of Moths May Save You Hundreds of Dollars.

MORTEMOTH KILLS MOTHS

The gas from Mortemoth crystals not only protects your furniture for a long time, but contact with it kills all moths, their eggs and their dangerous larvae in furniture which is already infested.

The proper method of using Mortemoth crystals is to tie them in small sacks, and to place these sacks down in the channel of the piece, as deeply as possible, behind the cushions, so that, upon expansion, the gas will spread and fill the spring units in the back and in the bottom of the piece.

When the sacks are empty, fill them again.

$1,500,000 Damage In Film Fire

ran from the building and that as they reached the street, an explosion sent flames shooting after them.

The injured, whom doctors feared might suffer from after effects of the deadly gas, were Mrs. Irene Beardslee, Mrs. Ada Wilson, Miss Annette Anderson and Mrs. Ada Bucher.

Mrs. Wilson described the manner in which the fire started and the flight of the girls to safety.

Pringle Starts Fire

Annette Anderson, in charge of the night crew, was helping a girl to rewind some picture films on a polishing machine.

The reel broke, stepping the wheel on the rewind but the hub kept in motion.

"It was just a few seconds later that a white circle of smoke started from the machine," I shouted.

"Come on, girls, let's get out of here."

"Someone grabbed the new girl, whose name I don't know, and shoved her out of the room. We older women knew what that smoke meant."

Films Insured

After four of six vaults were opened, it was known that some productions had suffered. Various studios sent their day's product to the laboratory. The films are insured.

Three days' work on "He'll Be Angels," Howard Hughes' aviation epic, were destroyed with an estimated loss of $100,000. He said he believed the unduplicated negative of the entire picture was saved in a vault. Its value is $1,500,000.

United Artists' lost several reels of "Playboy" starring Harry Richmond, and "The Champ" starring Fanny Brice. Because studio directors had taken Norma Talma's "New York Nights" away for a pre-view it was saved. The messenger returning the $1,000,000 film arrived to find the plant in flames.

High Art Pupils Making Sketches

The scenery of the San Francisco bay region was the inspiration for the sketches now being made by the advanced art classes of Richmond Union high school.

These wood and linoleum cuts will be submitted for publication to the staff of the Richmond Union high school yearbook.

The majority of the sketches have been made by Bernard Follett, promising young artist of the local high school. Several notable cuts have been created by the other members of the classes. The work has been done under the direction of Bernice Whiting, art instructor.

PANTAGES CASE TO GO TO JURY

Pringle came into the theater alone and left alone and that she had been gone only three minutes when the screams rang out.

"Pantages told Miss Russo—'Stick to that three minutes' and Miss Russo told the district attorney that story, but changed it and admitted that the girl had been gone half an hour before she screamed."

"Pantages is an artist. He is enacting the greatest drama in his life before you. But the illusion is apparent."

"Keep that picture in your mind—the proud mother sending her girl from home in the morning and seeing her in that other condition that night."

Mother Seized

Jerry Gelsler, who followed Stewart as first defense attorney to address the jurors, declared that Miss Pringle's mother should not have allowed her to "touch the edge of Hollywood with its lures and such men as Nicholas Dunaev, author of her act."

"The district attorney was not sure of himself in this case," Gelsler shouted. "He was not content with Miss Pringle's testimony, or with that of her mother. He brought in such men as Jay Sheridan to testify that Mr. Pantages wanted him to testify falsely. The district attorney did every thing to help an uncertain case."

"But he didn't bring in medical testimony. We brought in doctors he had asked to examine Miss Pringle; he wouldn't. They testified that they found no evidence of a recent attack."

"Girl Fought"

"And I want to say right now that an athletic girl, fighting with all her limbs free, could not be assaulted as she said she was. I say that her story by its impossibility makes the story of Mr. Pantages all the stronger."

"Mr. Pantages could not have emerged unscathed had he been combating a resisting girl. Yet a police officer told you he was unscathed, but that his tie was loosened. Mr. Pantages told you Miss Pringle grabbed that tie."

Joe Ford, second of the defense staff, had just started his argument when court recessed until 9 a. m. Friday.

Reviews Case

Stewart reviewed Pantages' testimony that Miss Pringle begged an interview and that when they went into the little room she tore his clothing to compromise him and that he had to push her into the hallway.

"We have the testimony of W. L. Gordon that Pantages was no pushing her, but was trying to hold her in the room, grasping her leg."

"There was that great theatrical magnate on his hands and knees begging someone to close the door."

"Then, too, we must remember the testimony of that faithful policeman, Mrs. Katherine Bellus, who saw the bruised and bitten body of Miss Pringle only an hour after the attack."

"Those bites tell the story of the horror of that little room. We have Mrs. Bellus' testimony of the indication of the consumption of an attack."

"No Money Asked"

Stewart made a plea to the jury of seven women and five men to remember that the girl came into court asking that the man who assertedly attacked her be punished; that she did not ask for money.

"Remember that in this case with all its innuendoes, the only one question to be decided and that is: 'Did Alexander Pantages on the 9th day of August attack Eunice Pringle, a minor?'"

"In your hands rests the decision. Think of the stigma, the dishonor that has come to the child because she must come in to court must appeal to blind justice; think of the publicity. Remember how she was questioned mercilessly by the defense attorneys."

"Brave Girl"

"When I said that little girl step bravely down from that witness stand after the ordeal, I told myself that the day of miracles is not over. She testified and came away unscathed."

Stewart charged further that the defense had sought by innuendo to insinuate that there was a frameup, had questioned state's witnesses to that effect and had failed in every case to do more than drop the subject without proof.

Each side has four and a half hours in which to argue. The best will maneuver manœuvre state opened with Stewart, Jerry Gelsler, Joe Ford and W. L. Gilbert will follow for the defense in that order and District Attorney Byron Pitts probably will close for the state in time for the jury to get the case Friday.

Moose Dance Called Off

Devotees of the terpsichorean art were doomed to disappointment last night when they planned on attending the dance given by the Richmond Moose lodge.

Singly and in groups the would be dancers flocked to the Moose hall, where they were sadly informed by Ed Ridley that the dance would have to be called off, due to the absence of an orchestra.

According to Ridley, members of the orchestra came to see him the night before, and intended playing last night, but as the hours passed, the story was the same. No orchestra.

Physiology Club Plans U. C. Visit

The Girls' Physiology club of the Richmond Union high school is planning to visit the science department of the University of California next Thursday. The trip will be under the direction of Mrs. Marion Poase and Mrs. H. J. Brounson of the Richmond high school faculty.

The club made a trip of the same nature earlier in the term, when they visited the Alta Bates hospital in Berkeley. The club has shown much interest in the betterment of living conditions, and has listened to several lectures on this subject.

A lecture on the conditions in China was given by Mrs. A. Pratt at a recent meeting of the club. Mrs. Pratt told of her experiences at a missionary in the Orient, and described the customs of the people among whom she lived. She said that there is a great opportunity for nursing in China.

The Physiology club has also had many social activities, having held two parties since the beginning of the fall term.

Plans are being arranged for the next concert, which will be held Thursday noon at the school auditorium.
